Investigations &
Oversight–Americas,
Ankura

- U.S. trade and technology control-related policies, statutes, and regulations are becoming more stringent and impactful for life sciences researchers
- Tighter requirements and active enforcement related both to life sciences-related technologies and a growing population of non-U.S. prohibited parties indicate a need to understand your risks and responsibilities
- In this webinar, experts will familiarize attendees with the U.S. trade and technology control framework, principal requirements, and critical recent developments most relevant to life sciences researchers and organizations
